Mitchell Williams has a long history of serving the needs of banking clients. When it comes to financial regulatory matters, our Bank Regulatory team works with banks, insurance companies and trust and loan companies.

Our attorneys provide counsel relating to new incorporations, new capital instruments, corporate finance, bank and insurance holding company administrations, corporate governance, business transfers, ownership rules, business and powers, investment rules, capital adequacy requirements, innovative tier 1 capital, related party rules, foreign bank regulatory rules and regulatory issues on merger and acquisition transactions. Experience also includes advising banks and bank holding companies on compliance with federal and state securities laws and drafting banking statutes.

We have built excellent working relationships with both the Arkansas State Bank Department and federal bank regulators, and have extensive experience in representing banks before regulatory agencies.
