Clifford McLeod is an attorney practicing in municipal and public finance, business and corporate law, and education. While in law school, Clifford served as an extended law clerk at Mitchell Williams which provided him the opportunity to gain valuable hands-on experience and hone the legal skills necessary for effective client advocacy. His career as a high school social studies teacher and soccer coach cultivated strong collaboration, communication, and leadership abilities, enabling him to work seamlessly with clients, colleagues, and stakeholders. Clifford combines his legal and educational backgrounds to provide informed guidance to municipalities, educational institutions, and businesses, particularly on public finance and corporate matters. His unique perspective and dedication make him a trusted resource for clients navigating public finance and business matters.
